

"Say the Word
That's Fit to Print"

The New York Times

THE WEATHER

Forecast for the City of New York and vicinity:
Today, cloudy with light rain; tomorrow, cloudy;
Wednesday, cloudy with light rain; Thursday, cloudy;
Friday, cloudy with light rain; Saturday, cloudy;
Sunday, cloudy with light rain.

The Social Studies: HUMPHREY LEADS A Revolution Is On

New Approach Is Questioning, Arguing—
Studiously Examine Various Cultures

By Elizabeth A. Wilson
The University of Chicago is engaged in a revolution. It is a revolution in the social studies, a revolution in the way in which the social sciences are taught. The revolution is being led by a group of young men, the so-called "New Social Studies" group, who are questioning the traditional approach to the social sciences and are seeking to replace it with a new approach that is more questioning, more arguing, and more open to the possibility of change.

The traditional approach to the social sciences, as practiced in the University of Chicago, was based on the idea of a fixed, unchanging social order. It was based on the idea that the social sciences were a body of knowledge that could be taught as a set of facts. The traditional approach was based on the idea that the social sciences were a body of knowledge that could be taught as a set of facts.

The new approach, however, is based on the idea that the social sciences are a body of knowledge that is constantly changing. It is based on the idea that the social sciences are a body of knowledge that is constantly changing. The new approach is based on the idea that the social sciences are a body of knowledge that is constantly changing.

The new approach is based on the idea that the social sciences are a body of knowledge that is constantly changing. It is based on the idea that the social sciences are a body of knowledge that is constantly changing. The new approach is based on the idea that the social sciences are a body of knowledge that is constantly changing.

Continued on page 10

Next to the helicopter, a helicopter is shown in flight, carrying a large load suspended from its hoist. The helicopter is flying over a body of water, and several figures are visible on the ground below, possibly soldiers or civilians.

Amtrak Deep in Debt At End of First Year

By [Name]
The first year of Amtrak's operation has ended in a state of deep debt. The railroad, which was created by Congress in 1970, has lost more than $1 billion in its first year of operation. The loss is due to a combination of factors, including high operating costs, low ticket prices, and a lack of government support.

ENEMY ARTILLERY BATTERS GUANTANAMO AS KILLING INTENSIFIES

By [Name]
The enemy's artillery has been battering the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, for several days. The base, which is one of the most important U.S. military installations in the Western Hemisphere, has been hit by several large shells, causing significant damage. The U.S. military has responded by firing back at the enemy's positions.

Continued on page 10

figure 46

figure 47

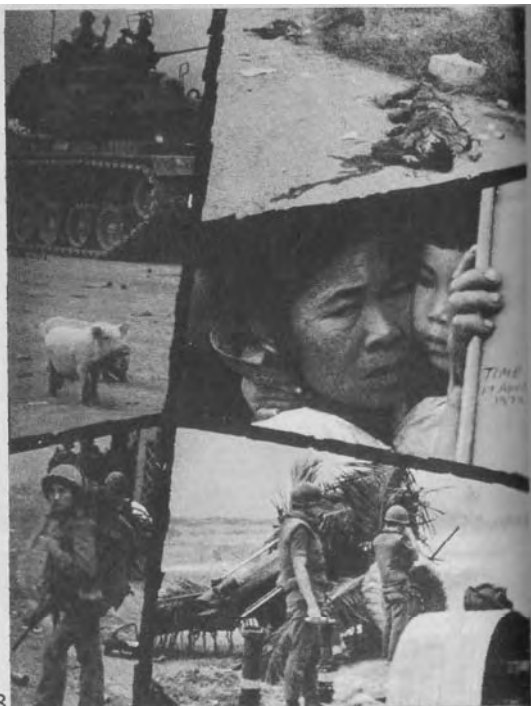

figure 48

figure 49

